Greek Dress for Modern Use.

(The Home Journal.)

The under-dress may be of silk, velvet, cashmere, or any other material. The over-dress, or shawl, can only be arranged becomingly as a tunic on the condition that the material of which it is composed is soft.

If a border be required it must also be flexible, whether of embroidery, braiding, bands of ribbon, or other flat trimming. Stiff borders and braids would interfere with the hang of the drape.

The modern adaptation of the ancient Greek dress mainly consists in the arrangement of the diaphanous. The under-dress may be worn low, and, according to the fashion now prevailing, sleeveless when full dress is required; or the sleeves of the material may be replaced by transparent ones of lace or gauze, in either case corresponding to, or forming part of, the chemise, which adorns the upper edge of the bodice or the drapery which covers it. This drapery is composed of a piece of material, the size of which is regulated by the stature of the wearer, the rule being that the width shall be double the square of the person measured from finger-tip to finger-tip, with the arms extended, the length being taken from the point of the shoulder to within two inches of the ground. The first step in preparing this piece of stuff is to double it, when it forms an oblong square, on the edges of which four loops are to be sewn—one on each of the two upper corners, and one at each of the corresponding quarters; a slight variation being sometimes required in the position of the latter loops, as the figure to be fitted is longer or shorter in the waist than the standard.

In arranging the drapery upon the person, the two inner loops—those at the quarters—are to be passed over buttons affixed to the under-dress, the place of which must be well on the shoulder, a little to the front. It is to be understood that the center of the shawl forms the back of the garment. When these two loops have been fastened to the buttons, that half of the width of the shawl which will be hanging between the shoulders must be drawn together, and may be permanently tucked at the waist, below which a portion of it will then fall, in the manner of the hood of a burnous. This gives graceful folds and additional length at the back of the skirt. The folds which form the skirt behind must now be drawn well back from the hips, and to facilitate this a pin may be inserted to bring them together beneath that portion of the edge of the shawl which has been tucked at the waist. The corner hanging from the left shoulder has now to be passed beneath the left arm, and, crossing the chest, to be fastened by its loop to the right-hand button; the same action reversed being afterward employed for the corresponding side. The two ends of the long shawl will now be crossing the chest, and it needs only the zone to secure the drapery in its place, that on the left being gathered into the hand as the zone is put on, and allowed to hang over the zone, and to be fastened to the right-hand button, which, though not essential, is still desirable, as giving to the skirt in front the beautiful oblique folds.

This arrangement, which takes so long to describe, can be accomplished on the person in two minutes, with moderate skill and practice; but where the skill is consciously deficient, a few stitches judiciously placed would suffice to attach the drapery to the under-dress as a permanent tunic or polonaise, the passing on the loops over the buttons being all that would be left to do. If the pocket was also dispensed with, although the drapery would then forego one of its distinctive merits, of being capable of being folded, into a small compass, without fear of crushing, it would still form a graceful garment of incomparably easy production, hanging in natural folds, the weight of which would, according to another principle of all good dress, be borne from the shoulder. That the dress here treated of could be richly adorned with embroidery, or even lace, is evident, while it is equally apparent that the essential beauty of all clothing resides in it, irrespective of such addition. It is thus suited to a wide range of needs and means.

A girl near Pino, who has been waiting several years for her young man to screw his courage up to the sticking point, sent him the following note. After he had spent six nights trying to read it, he didn't know whether it was an urgent request for him to commit suicide or an invitation to a spring picnic. He said one might as well try to make a fanning mill fat by running oars through it as to try and read the note:

"I have read and that me Love is up well I'll have But that and you have you'll One and down and you'll"

A little colored girl on Long Island, who attempted to poison a farmer's family by seasoning their tea with Paris green, knows how she came to do it. She looked through a hole in the fence when two men were being hanged for murder. Moral: Stop up the holes in the fence when a hanging is going on. Otherwise don't hang the man.

Put your lamp chimney in lukewarm water, heat it to the boiling point, and hold it one hour, after which leave it in the water till it cools. The chimney will be less liable to break by sudden change of temperature.

Preparations for Marriage.

Girls do not reach their maturity until they are twenty-five, yet at sixteen they are wives and mothers all over the land, robbed of all the rights and freedom of childhood in marriage, crippled in growth and development; the vital forces needed to build up a vigorous and healthy womanhood are snapped and prevented from their legitimate channels in the premature office of reproduction. When the body is over-taxed, the mind loses its tone and settles down in a gloomy discontent that enfeebles the whole moral being. The feeble mother brings forth feeble sons; the sad mother those with morbid appetites. The constant demand for stimulants among men is the result of the morbid condition of their mothers.

Healthy, happy, vigorous womanhood would do more for the cause of temperance than any prohibitory or license law possibly can. When woman, by the observance of the laws of life and health, is restored to her normal condition, maturity will be a period of weakness, but of added power. With that high preparation of body and soul to which I have referred, men and women of sound body and mind, drawn together by true sentiment of affection, might calculate with certainty on a happy home, with healthy children gathering around its fireside. To this end let girlhood be as sacredly devoted to education, to mental, moral and physical growth, to its high preparation for personal independence and ambition as boyhood is to day; remembering that girls, as well as boys, were created primarily for their own enjoyment, and only secondarily to serve each other.

Production in the normal condition of woman will not be a period of suffering, but of joy and thanksgiving. One of the saddest features of woman's present condition is that she is cursed of heaven in her womanhood; that it is one of nature's necessities that she should undergo the period of maternity. It is because we ignorantly violate so many laws of our being that is to-day.

WAY DO CHILDREN DIE?—This question is answered by a Medical Recorder as follows:

"The reason why children die is because they are not taken care of. From the day of birth they are stuffed with water, suffocated in hot rooms and steamed with bed-clothes. So much for indoor. When permitted to breathe a breath of pure air once or twice during the colder months, only the nose is permitted to peep into daylight.

A little later they are sent out with no clothes at all on the parts of the body which most need protection. Bare legs, arms and necks, girted middles, with an inverted umbrella to collect the air and chill the other parts of the body. A stout, strong man goes out in a cold day with gloves and overcoat, woolen stockings and thick double-soled boots, with cork between and rubbers over. The same day a child of three years old, an infant of flesh and blood, and bone and constitution, goes out with shoes as thin as paper, cotton socks, legs uncovered to the knees, necks bare, an exposure which disables the nurse, kills the mother outright, and makes the father an invalid for weeks. And why? To harden them to a mode of dress which they are never expected to practice. To accustom them to exposure which a dozen years later would be considered downright foolery.

A New Hampshire woman has a husband who is addicted to joining secret societies. One of her exasperated outbursts is thus reported by the Manchester Mirror: "Jine! he'd jine anything. There can't be nothing come along that's dark, and sly, and hidden, but he'll jine it. If anybody should get up a society to burn his house down, he'd jine as soon as he could get in, and if he had to pay to get in, he'd go all the end-dener."

A SOLDIER'S GRATITUDE.—When General Ricketts was a wounded prisoner in Richmond, his wife went to stay with him, nursing him and other Northern prisoners. For three months she was the subsistence of that horrible place, and her patients have never forgotten her. Two years afterward she got into a car at the corner of Fifth and Broadway, New York, with her mother. It was full, and she stood without a seat. Suddenly a great six-footer sprang up at the far end of the car and sang out: "Gentlemen, stand up, every one of you, and take off your hats for this is Mrs. General Ricketts who nursed fourteen of us in Libby prison for three months. God bless her!" And they did stand up, and led by her former patient, cheered until the street rang. She is in the meantime half provoked, half amused and holly embarrassed.

It is related by the White River Junction Observer, a New Hampshire paper, that a farmer went to the seminary at West Lebanon with two little girls and inquired for the measles. He said he wanted his children to "catch them now," before the busy time of the year came on, when they could not so well be taken care of. He was told that they had no measles on hand, and he went away disappointed.

When a man's wife comes in and sees him razor in hand and with his face all lather, asks him: "Are you shaving?" It's a provoking thing in him to answer, "No, I'm blacking the stove," but his nature turns to so reply.

Railroad Lands.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company has recently issued a pamphlet, in which the Company sets forth the terms on which they will sell the land granted them by the Government. The terms are stated as follows:

1. Payment in full at time of purchase, with $3 notary's fee for acknowledgement of signatures to deed.
2. Payment of 20 per cent. of total amount, and first year's interest on remainder at time of purchase; the remainder on said remainder in advance; the remainder payable at expiration of five years. Should purchaser desire to make full payment before expiration of five years, he may do so.
3. In five annual payments. Twenty percent. of total amount and first year's interest on remainder at time of purchase; the remainder payable in four equal annual payments at the commencement of each year from date of contract, with interest thereon in advance. If preferred, payment in full can be made at any time.
4. In nine payments. Twenty percent. of total amount and first year's interest on remainder at time of purchase; the remainder payable in eight equal semi-annual payments, the first of these payments one year after date of contract, and the others every six months thereafter, with interest on the remainder semi-annually in advance. If preferred, payment in full can be made at any time.

The rate of interest in all cases will be seven percent. per annum.

THE LITTLE SNOW-PLOW.—Mountain locomotives have two enemies, the falling rock and the snowslide. Both these are successfully vanquished by the simple invention named "the little snow-plow." It consists of a concave triangular piece of boiler iron, which fits snugly over the pilot. It is perhaps two feet in height, with a sharp angle in front, and sides which reach backward and forward over the rails. It tosses aside with the utmost ease a foot or two of snow, and so demoralizes an ordinary drift that an engine has no difficulty in passing through. But the peculiar forte of these iron shields is wrestling with the huge rocks and boulders which these warm spring days detach from the mountain sides. Rolling down the slippery banks and lodging squarely upon the track, these savage rocks seem fully bent upon wrecking the trains and landing the passengers in the eddies of the river. The train comes sweeping around the curve all unconscious of the perilous boulder, and the watchful eyes of the engineer catches a glimpse of the fatal train-wrecker too late to avert the danger. But the little snow-plow is wide awake and ready for business. Backed by the ponderous engines and swift moving train, it catches the rock and hurls it twenty, forty, fifty feet into the air. Rock that weigh 500 pounds are thrown as easily as the foot trips a pebble from the sidewalk. Engine 181, with one of these plows, cleared the track of a boulder which weighed over half a ton. There is no shock which is perceptible to those on the train, but when the next station is reached the heavy iron or the little snow-plow is found to be dented as if it had been struck by a cannon ball.—Truckee Republican.

In Albany, N. Y., the first woman to vote under the new law for a School Board was Kate Stoneman Secretary, of the County Woman's Suffrage Society, a member of the Faculty of the State Normal School, and sister of General Stoneman of California.

As potatoes are selling for five cents a pound in Arizona, the farmers in Yavapai county intend to plant a great breadth in that crop this season, and they will be so plenty that it will hardly pay to dig them.

The slums of New York, which all visitors to the city were heretofore so anxious to see, are losing their fascination. The Chinese quarter is the growing attraction for the average ruralists.

O'Leary challenges any two men in England to make a six-day go-as-you-please match with Hart and Dobler for $10,000 or $20,000, the contest to take place in New York.

An Oregon gentleman has been buying several hundred horses in Lower California, and they are to be driven overland by vaqueros hired in San Diego.

Robert Fortune, an English author and botanist, employed in 1857 by the United States to collect in China the seeds of tea and other plants, is dead, aged sixty-seven.

By a vote of 735 to 153 the Iowa Republican Convention selected a solid Blaine delegation to Chicago.

Something over 3,000 feet of snow-sheds on the Central Pacific railroad have been crushed by snow during the past winter.

Hon. E. A. Tittle is named as a possible candidate for United States Senator from Nevada to succeed Sharon.

A Carson man has the record to show that for the past six years there has been a snow or rain storm on the 15th of April.

The Democratic State Convention has been called to meet at Oakland on May 19th.

The E. F. Bulletin says that the Board of Directors of the Central Pacific Railroad Company met last week and adopted a new land policy, namely: First, to advance the price of their lands, and also the rate of interest from 10 to 15 per cent. on deferred payments; second, to sell on the installment plan, in five annual payments; third, to issue tickets to intending purchasers (called a land-seeker's ticket), to points along the main line and branches of the Central Pacific Railroad, in connection with which will be a non-transferable voucher, making the amount paid, etc., and which can be turned in as cash in the first payment for land by the person named thereon, and making a purchase. The same thing has been adopted by the Southern Pacific Railroad.

BODIEWARD.—The Enterprise of Thursday says that Colonel Stoughton and Sedge C. C. Goodwin will leave Carson City on Friday morning for Bodie and other mining camps in that direction. They will be absent several days. They go by private conveyance, and will therefore be able to stop at any place along the road where there is to be seen anything of interest in the way of mines.

Perhaps the most characteristic and interesting portrait of President Lincoln now in existence is a quaint old ambrotype of the gaunt and awkward man of thirty-seven seated in an old rush-bottomed chair and dressed in well worn dark clothes, with an old-fashioned stock, and his uncombed hair standing out in all directions. The picture is owned by a gentleman in Illinois.

There is a young lady nineteen years old in Trinity county, who has never seen a wagon; yet she is accomplished, being a good housekeeper, writer, singer and conversationalist. She is not blind, but lives in the lower part of the country, far away from the traveled roads.

And now comes the ruthless antiquarian, and, not satisfied with showing that Edison's discoveries were known in England years ago, tells the world that in the Spanish archives there is a plan, three hundred years old, by De Avila, to join the Rio Grande and Chagres rivers by a ship canal.

The Central Pacific will increase the rate of speed on all passenger trains on the road shortly. It is understood that orders have been given to raise the outside rail three inches on all shorter curves.

Candidates for the Fall election are beginning to announce themselves in Fresno county. There is nothing like being in time.
